

LISS POST

Dragon discovered

By Max Eldridge

On Thursday 8th October 2020 Ash class found the vicious, red, bloodthirsty dragon after it was found in the plant pot.

Mr Haycock was on the roof and sweeping and cleaning when all of a sudden he found a mysterious egg so he put it in Ash class.

“I wondered what the egg was but I gave it to Ash class to see what it was and if it would hatch,” the caretaker remarked.

Two weeks later Henry White saw the egg had disappeared from where Mr Haycock put it.

“I was a little bit worried when I saw that the dragon had gone out of its place,” suggested Henry.

It's the first time dragons have come to Liss in decades so people will have to watch out where they are going in case more dragon eggs pop up.

At the moment, the red, intimidating dragon is in the head teacher's office so it can be kept safe and also the dragon is in the head teacher's dog bed and having a good time.

